Today's Program: Dr. David Schwartz, "USGS-HayWired Project" Earthquake Impacts

Today's Speaker: Dr. David Schwartz is Earthquake Geologist Emeritus with the US Geological Survey. He will be talking with us today about the HayWired Project which is an earthquake scenario designed to model and study impacts on the San Francisco Bay area from a magnitude 7 earthquake on the Hayward Fault. The study builds upon understanding of the last large earthquake to occur on the Hayward Fault in 1868, but with the realization that modern urban infrastructures are made vulnerable by multiple layers of interdependencies between lifelines, with a major reliance on the Internet. This scenario also considers impacts from a sequence of aftershocks following the main earthquake, an aspect often overlooked but an important component of the physical and emotional damage associated with large earthquakes extending into the days and months following. The HayWired scenario is the fourth disaster scenario from the SAFRR Project and is supported by the USGS Natural Hazards and Climate and Land Change Science Mission Areas.
